Annual Convention of U. F. A.

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The annual convention of the U. F. A. convened at Calgary, January 21, 22, 23, in Paget hall, where the 600 delegates were welcomed by Mayor Sinnott, who said he believed there was nothing so important to the country as farming, and he welcomed them in behalf of the citizens and anything in his power to advance the organization he would be pleased to do so.

An address followed by the Hon. Duncan Marshall, who said that he found this organization not a critical one but a constructive one, and that the government had received suggestions that were constructive, and as a result there will be much more legislation on the books of the Province on account of this work of the U. F. A. organization. He believed the farmer should have the right to sell in the highest market and buy in the cheapest. Any farmer buying a binder on 15c oats had a hard job ahead of him. They found that the experimental farms were coming up against the same thing as the farmers, and realized their situation.

The chairman was then presented with the address of the president, Mr. Tregillus, which certainly contained all good sound suggestions relating to the present and future problems of the U. F. A. As we were fighting for a good cause, a true democracy and an equitable distribution of wealth, we want conditions whereby the wealth producers may be able to retain a fair proportion of the wealth they create, and put a stop to the greater part of its flowing into the pockets of the few, who understand the laws governing the distribution of wealth and who are ever on the watch to have these laws fashioned to serve their own ends. Mr. Tregillus said that we are beginning to see that Henry George was right when he said "Under all forms of law the ultimate power lies with the masses. It is not kings, nor aristocrats, nor landlords, nor capitalists, that enslave the people. It is our own ignorance. The wealth producers of this province, this dominion, this empire, can, when they will, throw off their political, their economic, and their social bondage, become relieved of the unjust extortions practiced upon us. Organizations, like individuals, are measured by their opportunities. With our magnificent opportunities we must produce equal results, remembering always that opportunity is a great passing event, demanding immediate obedience, but if we fail to grasp it it may pass beyond our reach. The remedy necessary therefore is organization, our only weapon. With organization we can overcome every obstacle. Let it be our strength and let us imbue every member of every union with its importance, and show each individual member how dependent the ultimate success of our efforts is on his work, his interest and his loyalty. Every member should become acquainted with economic questions. He should attend and take a keen interest in his union meetings; his very presence is an inspiration, and he will be able to form a true estimate of the importance of the work to be done, and the necessity for his help. The idea that a man may join a union and obtain benefits for himself without assuming and performing the active duties and responsibilities of membership, both moral and financial, is the basis of the weakness of some of our unions. The best suggestions do not always come from the most brilliant. The humblest worker or the youngest member may have a thought of little value in itself, but of vital importance to the more constructive mind, and can be used to a greater advantage to the whole body.

I am referring to these extracts from the President's report, believing them to contain some very important matter, that we should act upon in our own local unions, here around Cayley. It is very gratifying that I am able to report that Cayley had a very strong delegation at the convention. From personal observation can say that the solid delegation were in attendance at the eight sessions held during the three days, which proves the interest they had in the U. F. A. and the members they were representing from their home local.

While the legislative committee did not report as favorably as could be expected, nevertheless, it shows a stride in the right direction, by the presence of government officials and representatives from the great corporations endeavoring to meet us on a more common ground to help solve the difficulties confronting the farmers. The convention condemned the naval policies of Bonar Law and Laurier, and wished to be put on record as believing in peace universally, and adopting a resolution toward prohibition in the province of Alberta. A resolution was passed in favor of cooperative legislation; also adopting a resolution favoring an elevator scheme, of which you have details in the press.

Space prohibits me giving fuller details of the convention. Mr. Tregillus was re-elected president by acclamation. Vice-presidents as follows: Quinsey, Sheppard, Henry and Carswell. Director for our constituency, Mr. Lennox of Granum. Lethbridge was selected as the place of next year's convention. If every member of the U. F. A. will be an earnest worker we can rest assured that 1913 will show greater advancement for the U. F. A. than in any previous year of our existence.

"I had a dream that we are going to take a long step toward universal peace, but after negotiating a treaty with England and a treaty with France I awoke," said President Tait the other. He explained that through treaties between the United States and European nations, and interlocking treaties to follow, he had hoped a great arbitral court could be established.

"That was my dream," he said. "We negotiated the first two treaties with England and France, and then I woke up"—In time to sign the Panama bill, which smashed one of the treaties with Great Britain.

Bank of Hamilton Continues to Grow

Unlike certain other of our Canadian chartered banks which show a tremendous accretion of deposits and paid-up capital as the result of the combining of one bank with another, the Bank of Hamilton continues, as the result of its annual business, to exhibit only natural, if somewhat noteworthy, gains all along the line. The total assets of this institution now stand at $48,907,883.32, showing an increase of assets over the year before when the figure stood at $44,732,137.81. Net profits realized from the business of 1912 show an increase over those of the year before of over $50,000. Net earnings for the year just closed were $495,860.50, compared with $343,596.45 for 1911. The total available for distribution at the end of 1912 amounted to $816,820.59, which compared with the difference in amount received as premium on the sale of capital stock, shows also a healthy gain over 1911. The reserve fund of the bank stands at $1,500,000 as compared with paid-up capital amounting to $3,000,000.

The Handling of Eggs

That eggs are likely to suffer much in flavor and value as an article of food if exposed to bad odors and stored in filthy surroundings is clearly shown by F. W. Macellus in a recent number of the O. A. C. Review. He points out that ignorance of this fact has resulted in the practical loss of an extremely profitable trade in eggs by some countries. In this connection some of the suggestions for poultrymen are:

"Collect the eggs once per day in winter and twice daily in summer."

"Keep eggs after gathering them in a cool, sweet atmosphere, free from odors."

To the country merchant he says in part:

"Keep eggs away from oils, fish, vegetables or other odiferous materials."

Martin Armstrong, the young Nanton rancher, against whom Miss Louisa Collard was given a $20,000 verdict recently in a suit for breach of promise, has served notice of appeal.

FRANCE is Europe's banker. For a country to acquire that position, her people must be remarkably thrifty. The people of France are exceptionally so—they begin to save in their youth. No matter how small their income, a portion is regularly set apart for future needs. In old age they enjoy the fruits of their thrift. They are a happy nation.

The opening of a savings account is the best way to acquire that habit of saving without which no ability to save can insure you against possible misfortune.

RARE GEMS STOLEN

Thieves Loot Jeweller's Shop in Something Like Record Time

In Paris a theft of about $50,000 worth of jewelry was carried out in extraordinary daring and in less than five minutes in a jeweller's shop at the corner of the Place de l'Opera in Paris, early yesterday morning.

According to the Societe Generale gave up its little branch office next to the shop of M. Gler, the jeweller, at No. 4, Place de l'Opera. The jeweller took over the premises of the bank in the morning and the thieves waited until the morning.

The inquiries made by the police led them to believe that the thief spent the night in the premises which recently belonged to the Societe Generale.

His opportunity came when at 7 o'clock this morning the watchman went outside the jeweller's shop to open the iron shutters. Then the thief must have slipped into the shop through the hole in the wall, and rifled the most choice of jewelry standing ready to his hand.

Whether this theory is true or not, there is no doubt that the thief got away with many valuable rings and a diamond necklace and other jewelry to the value of $50,000.

HER MEMORY LOST

Woman Put into Hypnotic Trance in Order to Discover Her Identity

A very strange and remarkable mystery of the identity of a young woman in Paris who completely lost her memory eighteen months ago is involved.

Tall and slim; blue eyes, chestnut hair, a bright and sunny disposition, this young Englishwoman when I saw her yesterday appeared to be about 30 years of age.

She is supposed to have lost her memory as the result of a shock. A one time, when Dr. M. Menant de Chazelles, a famous French specialist in charge of the case, put her into a hypnotic trance, she gave the name of Alice Meadows, but on several occasions she has declared that her real name is Winifred Courtney Henderson, and in her trances she never again is involved.

This statement appears to be confirmed by the fact that she has been bearing the initials "H.C.H." since the initials of the name of the Hendersons.

A Frenchman says that she was born in India and that she remembers St. Paul's Cathedral in London, and the uncle who died in the British army. She also remembers a certain Mrs. Henderson who used to visit her family.

In her childhood, she says, she had a governess called Bella, who left her one day. Her mother, she says, had to come to live at Chatham.

When Bella left to be married, Mrs. Henderson went to a convent at Ipswich. The details she gave of this convent were so complete that the Abbess Hermol, who has conducted her to the convent, was accompanied her to Ipswich to visit her.

All the particulars she gave of the convent and the neighborhood of the name of the convent were found to be exact, but at the convent no one knew her.

Before leaving she recalled that she had been married to a man named John Henderson, who had been killed in the war.

"KITCHENER" OF TURKEY

Held His Own Against Bulgarians

In this, the Turkish Minister of War, and commander of the army defending Constantinople, is now known as the "Kitchen of Turkey."

The Pasha's defence of Constantinople has surprised the Bulgarians, who predicted an easy victory for the Turks.

Whether, when the tumult of war has died down, Constantinople shall be left in the hands of the Bulgarians, or shall be handed over to one of the nations which have battled their way to its gates or shall be ruined by a combination of the powers is one of the principal vexatious questions arising out of the Turkish-Balkan war.

The lecture given by Rev. Mr. Gold, of the Temperance and Moral Reform League, on Friday evening in the Presbyterian hall was well attended.
